The S&P 500® Total Return Index (the “S&P 500”) is a broad unmanaged index of 500 stocks, which is widely recognized as representative of the equity market in general. Please note that indices do not take into account any fees and expenses of investing in the individual securities that they track and individuals cannot invest directly in any index.

The performance information quoted in this annual report assumes the reinvestment of all dividend and capital gain distributions, if any, and represents past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results. Index returns do not include expenses, which are deducted from Fund returns. The returns shown do not reflect taxes that a shareholder would pay on Fund distributions or on the redemption of Fund shares. How did the Fund perform last year?

For the fiscal year ended November 30, 2025, the Institutional Class of the Fund gained 11.01%, underperforming its benchmark of The S&P 500. The Fund believes the S&P 500 is an appropriate benchmark as it aligns with the Fund's primary focus of investing in U.S.equities and provides consistency for investors when measuring performance.

What factors influenced performance during the past year?

- The market experienced a sustained rally from Election day 2024 into mid-February 2025. Leading up to and following the implementation of new Tariffs, equities declined, which guided the Fund's decision to take a more cautious approach by reducing investment exposure and raising cash. The Fund maintained a positive investment outlook, choosing to limit the use of hedging and underwriting due to high market volatility as management believed this was necessary to prevent excessive costs while trying to time the market during a period of uncertainty, which also led to a lower portfolio turnover.
- With rate cuts expected and clarity around the purpose of tariffs as a negotiating tool to drive large foreign investments into the U.S. economy, the Fund invested in sectors and industries thought to have compelling value such as Asia, Financials, Solar, and Commodities. These sectors and industries were selected based on new data center buildouts for companies, high expectations and adoption of artificial intelligence, rate cuts, and oversold stocks based on an unsustainable tariff rate. This enabled the Fund to outperform the market by a few percentage points into September 2025 as the Market rallied on eminent rate cuts.
- As our philosophy remained unchanged during the 4th quarter, and while the market reported modest gains, the Fund underperformed during the quarter mainly due to stock selections as some of our largest positions delivered weak performance during the final quarter of our fiscal year due to high capital expenditures.
